

What You Can Do

Although judges will decide the case, we know that the last court case about our health care system was heavily influenced by public opinion.

That's why it's important that all people in Canada know about this critical challenge and that we speak out together about the importance of upholding Medicare in court.

Together, we can make sure that accessible, quality Canadian public health care is here for generations to come.

Here's how:

Help raise awareness about the case with your membership

Articles in newsletters, on your website, and in your social media communications go a long way to getting the word out. You can find these resources on our website:

- Template newsletter article
- 1-page information sheet
- Website button to link to more info about the case

Speak out publicly about the importance of upholding Medicare in court

It's important that a diversity of voices speak together across the country in favour of upholding our universal system and the values it represents. Writing an Op-ed or Letter to the Editor or contacting local media to comment will go a long way to building that voice.

Host a public event about the case

Public forums are being organized across the country. Can you host an event? Canadian Doctors for Medicare and the BC Health Coalition can help arrange speakers.

Your organization is the expert on how to best inform your membership

If there is information or materials in addition to what we have provided that would help get the word out in your community, please don't hesitate to be in touch.
